

THE SUNDAY WORLD.

INAUGURAL EDITION TO-MORROW.

THE SUNDAY
PRESIDENT.

It will shed lustre on the assumption of office by a Democratic President and raise the importance and dignity of that event in history. Future generations will preserve this edition and learn from it what a great and magnificent celebration occurred on the 4th of March, 1893. To those who have aided "The World" in achieving the great Democratic triumph it will be a source of peculiar joy, but to the erring it will be hardly less valuable. Not only will "The Sunday World" be the most complete and admirable publication that ever graced a Presidential inauguration, but it will be, in respect of its literary, artistic and general features, one of the finest newspapers ever published. These statements are substantiated, as far as possible within the limits of an advertisement, by the following list of attractions:

PORTRAITS OF THE CABINET.

A separate supplement, printed on fine paper, giving excellent portraits of every member of President Cleveland's Cabinet. They are portraits which would enhance the value of the most ambitious biographies of these statesmen. The spirits of Messrs. Cleveland, Gresham, Carlisle, Herbert, Lamont, Hoke Smith, Bissell, Olney and Morton, depressed by the pictorial efforts of other newspapers, will be raised.

THE INAUGURATION CEREMONIES.

Special correspondents and artists will describe these in a way which will be an example to future Gibbons and Macaulays of how history should be written. The ball, following the solemn proceedings of the day, will receive a large share of attention.

EARLY INAUGURATIONS.

How, when and where they have taken place. The manner of administering the oath of office to Washington and his successors.

JEFFERSON'S INAUGURATION.

A detailed account of the inauguration of the first Democratic President. It was simple, although the familiar story is untrue. He did not ride, but walked.

PECULIARITIES OF PRESIDENTS.

Anecdotes and incidents of the private lives of Presidents. How they have courted, loved, eaten and drunk.

THE WHITE HOUSE'S STORY.

The building and interesting events in the history of the Executive Mansion from the beginning up to the present day. The White House as it was, as it is and as it should be, shown by illustrations.

THE FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

Portraits of Senators and Representatives composing the first Congress which will legislate under the new Administration.

WHAT OFFICE DO YOU WANT?

The great and small offices in the gift of the President, with some information concerning the salary and duties attached to them and the prospects of obtaining them.

MR. McALLISTER AND THE INAUGURATION.

In an interview Ward McAllister, the discoverer of New York fashionable society, discusses the social prospects of the new Administration, giving the President what he considers valuable advice.

"THE DICTATOR," by Justin McCarthy.

This new and clever novel by the leader of the Irish Parliamentary party, in which he is understood to describe Parnell, will be continued in the Fiction Supplement of The Sunday World.

"THE RED FIDDLE."

A complete story of a touching character about an old man whose sole ambition was to possess a fiddle.

BILL NYE'S ZOOLOGY.

He writes of the higher education of horses, and tells how to keep cows at home nights.

NYM CRINKLE ON OSCAR WILDE.

Nym Crinkle dissects "Lady Windermere's Fan," and answers some questions which have been troubling intelligent playgoers.

PRINCESS KAIULANI'S STORY.

The Hawaiian Princess, whose inheritance Uncle Sam is thinking of annexing, tells about her life in Honolulu and in England. Some interesting illustrations of the Princess.

THE AMERICAN CAD.

Mr. Junius Henri Browne, well known as a social philosopher, tells about the American cad, his frequency, characteristics and origin.

HOBBIES OF WELL-KNOWN WOMEN.

An article on the curious hobbies of well-known American women and other news of feminine interest will be found on the Woman's Page.

"FROM DEAD MAN'S GULCH."

An entertaining and exhilarating specimen of Western literature.

"LANGALULA," by Grant Allen.

An incident in the life of a Zulu monarch showing the nature of missionary work.
